STRUCTURES

The word “home” can be used as a directional or a (non-directional) locative, as shown in the following examples:

- (1) a. They went home. (directional)
- b. They stayed home. (locative)

There is reason to believe that there is a null preposition in these structures.

NEST

“Home, sweet home, there’s no place like home; there’s no place like home.” How sweetly she had sung it!—he remembered it so well. And he remembered what she had said to him just afterwards—

“I’m going home, Christie—going home—home, sweet home. I’m going home, Christie.”

And those were the last words she had said to him.

Home Sweet Home (II) (2012)

Ever wonder about that one house on that perfect little street? In today's world things are not always what they seem. Home Sweet Home takes place in a quiet, friendly, suburban neighborhood. A young couple, Ryan and Nancy, move into their new home right away, but they have no clue that someone is watching them. Suspicious things start to happen to Ryan. Nancy starts to believe Ryan is having seizures. Does Nancy continue to succumb to denial or does she take action and fend for their lives? Home Sweet Home portrays an illusionary blindness that modern day society commits to.
